Teacher Answer Key & Notes

Keep this page for yourself – not for students

Vocab Bingo: Students draw their own bingo grid (or use the template) and fill it in with words/pictures from the word bank in any order, so no two boards match. Call out items in English; the first to get a line (or blackout) shouts "Bingo!"

Things I Like / Don't Like (drawing): Students draw on both sides of the page, then mingle and describe their drawings to classmates using "I like ____." / "I don't like ____."

"My Name Is..." Chant: Do this after teaching hobbies. Stand in a circle. One student chants "My name is ___, I like to ___,", then the whole class chants it back in third person and acts out the action together. Continue around the circle.

How Well Do You Know Your Friend? (teens/adults): One student comes to the front and turns around so they can't see the class. Ask the class a yes/no question about that student (e.g., "Do you like cats?"); classmates predict with a thumbs up/down or by writing yes/no. The student turns back, the class asks them directly, and points are awarded for correct predictions. Repeat with a new student, then try it at the partner level.

Chair Switching Game: Students sit in a circle (or stand on markers) with one student in the middle. The student in the middle asks "Do you like ____?" — everyone who likes it switches seats, and the middle student also tries to grab a seat. Whoever is left in the middle asks the next question. Works well for colors too: name a color and everyone wearing it switches.

Side of the Room: Students stand in the middle of the room. Ask if they like a color/hobby/animal/food; those who do move to one side, those who don't move to the other. Have everyone say the sentence together — "I like ____." / "I don't like ____." The digital practice tool's "Side of the Room" activity can call out prompts live for this game.

Likes & Dislikes Interview: Students circulate asking "Do you like ____?" for each item and circle Y/N for each classmate's answer — good mingling practice before or after Chair Switching / Side of the Room.
